From Geneva Daily Times, 8 June 1897, Clyde, N.Y. - Last Sunday morning, Mrs. Nicholas Fitzsimmons, who resides about two miles east of Clyde, left a large pan of hot water on the stove while she attended to some domestic duties. A few moments later, the mother was startled by agonizing cries of her two-year-old daughter, Nellie. She hastened to the kitchen and found that the little child had attempted to pull the pan from the stove, and in doing so had capsized it. The hot water had burned her face and hands and body terribly. Dr. T. H. Hallett, of Clyde, was summoned and everything possible was done to lessen the sufferings of the little one, but yesterday noon death came to her relief (online at wayne.nygenweb.net, "Wayne County, NY Ancestral Sightings: From NY State Resources Part 6).
