He is first heard of playing a concert in Leipzig in July 1806 and last heard of playing a concert in Hungary in May 1816. Between those dates, he spent most of his time in Wien. Between 1807 and 1811 he probably lived in Wien, where his works appeared in print through the publishing house Chemische Druckerey. He wrote works for the csakan or flute douce, 8 volumes of lighter pieces, a fantasy, a sonata, a Sonata brillante, all solo works. He also wrote 2 volumes of small duets, a concerto with string trio and 2 horns and a set of variations with string quartet and 2 horns. Possibly, Anton Heberle left Vienna in 1812 to settle in Hungary. He played the flute, csakan, flageolet and other woodwind instruments.

Wolfram Heberle attended Schauspielschule (acting school) Bern in 1991-95 and Institut für Kulturmanagement, Universität für Musik Wien in 2001-04. He was an actor in Germany, Austria and Switzerland 2001-03 and based in Regensburg, Germany in 2005.
