

DEED.

HITCHCOCK.—On the 14th of December, at his residence, after a short but painful illness, DANIEL HITCHCOCK, in the 44th year of his age.

Ah! how it chills the heart to think
That voice is no more heard within these walls,
It is no fiction, is it—no deluding dream?
Ah! no. Our friend is gone. The damp of death
O'er him.

The moon is shining on his grave, he will not wake
Until he wakes to immortality.

Death has robbed us of our treasure,
Of the one we loved so well;
Taken from this world of sorrow,
But he comes with him to dwell.

The relatives and friends of the family are invited to attend his funeral to-morrow (Thursday) morning, at eleven o'clock, from his late residence, Greenmount avenue, two doors above Chase st.

Beneath the silent shade we lay him
In the narrow casket bed;
There have placed my much loved father
With the calm and peaceful dead.
With the roses wreathed about him
And the laurels o'er his head.
Wake him not, the saviour called him,
Sweetly, calmly, let him rest.
