

‘DANIEL STANARD was the first resident lawyer who located permanently at Indiana. He was a native of Vermont, and came here, a young lawyer, in 1807. He was over six feet in height, erect and of commanding presence. His fine appearance would arrest attention anywhere. Although his early education was limited, by study and application he became a man of more than ordinary intelligence on most subjects.

“He was a successful practitioner of the law up till 1836, when he retired from active practice, and died March 4, 1867, at the age of eighty-five years.”
