BOVEE.*

This is a Dutch name, and the family is said to have come to Barnet and Danville from New York State, first appearing on the Barnet Grand List in 1814. Their choice of this section for residence, so far from any of their own people was no doubt based on the advice of Jacob's father-in-law who had arrived from Middleboro, Mass. some years before q. v. (p. 586).

[[

I am not, personally, totally convinced that Jacob¹ is the son of Gerrit,^β (Antonie,^α Mathias); but, evidence does point to the POSSIBILITY that he MIGHT be; although there is no proof. He also MAY be the son of a Bovee that lived in the Boston area of Massachusetts.

]]

(Φ) JACOB,¹ (Gerrit,^β Antonie,^α Mathias), b. ab. 1773 [gs]; m. Elizabeth² [gs] (Betty [bc] / Rhoda [son Peter's dc]) Redding (b. Feb. 22, 1777 [Middlbro, Mass. VRbc]; d. Prescilla and her brother Stevens Rider, Barnet's first town clerk q. v. (p. 589), descended from eight Mayflower Pilgrims including: John Alden, Priscilla Mullens, William Brewster, and Richard Warren [Mayflower Index]. Jacob first appears on the Grand List in 1814 and purchased the Waddell Farm (Hundred Acre Lot 28 near McIndoes Falls only a short distance from the Redding Farm) the following year [BLR Bk6p285]. The retired Peacham Town Clerk [Lorna (Field) Quimby] remembers visiting a small, unkept cemetery near the Barnet/Peacham line across the road from Moses S.'s uncle Moses R. Bovee's place. She recalls at least one stone, with engraving, very close to the road, in the southeast corner of the intersection. This cemetery was washed out, then bulldozed in 1978 during road repair and culvert replacement following a flooding. The workers clearly did not recognize a toppled gravestone there, and the area is now quite swampy due to changes in drainage patterns. The Barnet Hist. Soc. published a map in 1975 calling it the East Hill Cemetery and locating it in the northeast corner of the intersection -- but their site locations were only approximate and never intended to be exact. This location was razed by the skidders conducting logging operations ab. 2001.
