NOTE: This (6) WILLIAM⁴ (William³, Robert², William¹), is same as:
iv. William³ (William², Robert¹), in the RTH p. 365

There are still questions and contradictions in data as presented on different pages describing the same individuals. Most of these are annotated with the sources of the contradicting data given in the [reference].

Some of this family are today living in the Newport, Vt. and other areas. For the purposes of this paper, I have not sought to add any names to the 1923 History that are not "of Barnet", leaving those to other researchers.

GILFILLAN.
of Balfron, Scotland

The researches of Hon. John B. Gilfillan among the parish records of Scotland stored in the Public Registry at Edinburgh, show that Thomas^o Gilfillan and Margaret Dun or Dining, the former of Balfron and the latter of Kellearn, were proclaimed for marriage July 4, 1718. Also, that on Sept. 28, 1729 William¹, son of Thomas^o and Margaret Gilfillan, was baptized. The latter is believed to have been the father of the five sons who settled in Barnet. The records further show that on May 17, 1759 William¹ Gilfillan of Balfron and Helen Stevenson of Denny "was listed for proclamation in order to marriage," which was "proclaimed," June 10, 1759.

The Parish Records of Balfron show the following baptisms:

Sept. 1, 1760; James, son of William and Helen Gilfillan.

July 1, 1763; Mary, daughter of William and Helen Gilfillan.

Jan. 26, 1765/6 [1923 ed. quotes bapt. rec. date of 1765 on p. 433 and 1766 on p. 430]; Robert, son of William and Helen Gilfillan [b. ab. 1763 (gs)].

May 29, 1767; William, son of William and Helen Gilfillan.

The Gilfillans who settled in Vermont came from Balfron, Scotland. Balfron lies in the region of the Strath Endrick, or Valley of the Endrick, a river somewhat smaller than the Passumpsic. It empties into Loch Lomond. Balfron is about 18 miles northwest from Glasgow and is a village of eight or nine hundred people. The parish records of Scotland have been lately gathered up and are now stored at Edinburgh. Most of the early settlers of Ryegate and Barnet can be traced back nearly to the beginning of the 18th century. The parish church of Balfron after the revolution of 1688, was organized anew in 1691. One of the elders was Wm. Gilfillan, and it is recorded that he attended every meeting of the session for 20 years. In another line of the race was Samuel Gilfillan, a son of a merchant at Bucklyvie, about three miles from Balfron. He was a life time minister at Camrie. His wife was Rachel Barlas, who was known as the "Star of the North," being a wonderful housekeeper and home-maker. They had 12 children. Of these, James was a minister at Stirling, and George became a noted writer and preacher for almost 42 years at Dundee. He was one of the most notable Scotsmen of his time, and was considered by many as the brightest star in the literary firmament of Perthshire. Another brother was William, whose sons James and Samuel were a long time engaged in East India trade and later as bankers in London, where they now reside.

To the Gilfillans of Scotland must be given the credit of at least one poet, a writer of lyrics. He was of the same name as my own father, Robert Gilfillan, and born the same year. He "slippct awa" to his final rest in 1850. In the preface to a volume of his writings, published the following year, appears this curious legend:

"The few families of Gilfillan in Scotland almost all 'count kin'; the history of the clan being as follows:—Originally it belonged to the Isle of Mull; but, during the feudal wars, was overpowered by a more powerful clan, and completely extirpated. Two of the widows, however, by a coincidence, bore twin sons each, from whom we have all sprung."

From his apt and effective expression of feeling and sentiment, Robert Gilfillan, in his day, was best known as the poet of the hearth and home:

"We cannot live our days again,
But we can dream them o'er;
These nightly visions, free from pain,
Youth's sunny hours restore;
And, oh! who would not prize the past,
To love—to memory dear;
The golden moments could not last,
But they in dreams appear."

The song from which this is quoted, and "The Exiles Return," and his poem "Sabbath Among the Moorlands," are real gems of tenderness and beauty. His "Ode to Dumfermline," his native town,

". wi' its woody braes,
"And wee burns wimpling to the sea,"

while not so lofty or aspiring as Scott's immortal tribute to Old Caledonia, expresses as genuinely his Scottish love of home and country. His humorous characterization of "Peter McCraw,"* the tax gatherer, however shows him quite as capable of sentiment in other lines, and a poet of some diversity of talent.—J. B. G.

The direct ancestor of the Gilfillans who came to Vermont was Thomas⁰ who married Margaret Dunn. The place they occupied was known as "Wood End," a part of the Ballikrinian estate about a mile from Balfiron. The old house is gone, but the new one is said to be just like it, and is occupied by a family named Robertson. A glimpse of Loch Lomond and Ben Lomond can be seen from this place. William¹ Gilfillan, son of Thomas,⁰ m. Helen Stevenson dau. Robert Stevenson and Mary Adam his wife of the parish of Denny. They gave their names for marriage on May 17, 1759.

These were all members of the Center Church and are buried there.

William Gilfillan and his brother Thomas came on foot from Boston to Barnet. While on their way they stopped at the house of Abiel Blanchard in Concord, N. H. A quantity of apples was set before them, William saving the seeds, with which his orchard was planted. The child, Ruth Blanchard, then an infant[?], became his 2nd wife. He was known as "Little Will," to distinguish him from another Wm. Gilfillan, who was not related to this family.

(7) JOHN BACHOP,⁴ (Robert,³ Robert,² William¹). b. Feb. 11, 1835. Lived on farm, at work and attending district school. When he was 12 years of age the family moved to Peacham, where he attended the Academy, fitting for Dartmouth College. Began teaching at 17 years, teaching three winters to obtain funds for the college course, but was persuaded by his brother-in-law, Capt. John Martin, who had settled at St. Anthony's Falls, to come to that new country and teach, which he did, intending to return to college.

Studied law in the office of Nourse & Winthrop afterward that of Lawrence & Lochren. Admitted to the Bar of Hennepin Co., 1860. Partner with James R. Lawrence, then alone, after the war broke out. Joined, in 1871, the law firm of Lochren & McNair, the style being Lochren, McNair & Gilfillan. This firm became the most prominent in Minneapolis.

In 1885, Mr. Lochren was placed on the bench of the State District Court. The practice of the firm with which Mr. Gilfillan was connected was very large. It had some cases so notable that they settled the law in probate and equity practice. The members of the firm were also attorneys in their partnership capacity of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Chicago & Omaha, and the Minneapolis Eastern Railways; which brought them an immense practice, with almost invariable success.

The firm of Gilfillan, Belden & Willard was formed in 1885. This was emphatically, a Caledonia Co. concern. Mr. Belden came to Minneapolis, in 1884, from St. Johnsbury where he had been a partner in the law firm of Belden & Ide. Mr. C. A. Willard was a son of A. J. Willard of the firm of Willard & Ross, also of St. Johnsbury, Mr. Ross being afterward Chief Justice and U. S. Senator. After the promotion of Mr. Belden to the bench, Stephen Willard, a younger brother of C. A. Willard, came into the firm, the name being Gilfillan, Willard & Willard. The younger Willard died in 1900, and in 1901 his brother was appointed Justice of the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands, then under the administration of Gov. Gen. Henry C. Ide. After serving several years, Mr. Willard was appointed by President Taft, who had known him in the Philippines, Judge of the U. S. District Court for the District of Minnesota, to succeed Judge Lochren, retired.

Mr. Gilfillan's services to education began in organizing a mechanic's institute at St. Anthony in 1859. He also drafted the bill for organizing a school board. This bill was the model upon which the school system of Minneapolis was formed and is sustained. In 1880 he was appointed a regent of the State University, holding that office 8 years.

In 1876 he was elected State Senator for the part of Minneapolis east of the Mississippi, including the counties of Anoka, Isanti and Sherburne, holding the position 8 years. He was elected as a Republican, but largely supported by his political opponents. He was chairman of several important committees, especially of taxes and tax laws, of the Judiciary Committee and of the Financial Committee, also of the University and University laws. All these positions required vast labor and responsibility. In the most important act of Governor Pillsbury's administration, the adjustment of the state railroad bonds, he bore a prominent part.

Elected to Congress, 1885, as a Republican in a Democratic House, there was small opportunity for distinguishing himself.

In 1887, he visited Europe with his family, placing the children at school in Dresden, visiting every country except Portugal, even the North Cape, extending his journey to Egypt and the Holy Land, being absent about two and one-half years.

Of late years Mr. Gilfillan has had no associate, maintaining his office as general counsel, mainly with his old clients. He has also directed a farm of several hundred acres on the shore of Lake Minnetonka, thus getting back to the land.

Director since 1894 in the First National Bank, now merged with the Security Bank under the name of the First and Security National Bank.

Member and Trustee of the Westminster Presbyterian Chh. and chairman of the Board.

THE DAVID GILFILLAN FAMILY.

DAVID² (William and Helen {Stevenson}) b. ab. 1777/8 [gs]; came to America in 1794 with his sister Margaret and brothers John and Robert; m. March 11, 1802 [BVRmc(4-5)] Margaret³ Warden (b. ab. 1780 [gs]; d. March 24, 1852 [gs]) dau. William² and Isabel (Laird) Warden, q. v. (p. 654). They settled on a farm on the Danville line later occupied by the family of the late James Lang. They cleared the land from the primeval forest and were pioneers indeed. He is described as a study Scot of the old school. The Sabbath day was a sacred to him as life itself. As there were many Sabbaths when there was no preaching, "Society Meetings," as they were called were held at his house, "conducted with as much decorum and sanctity as any church service." He may well be described by another "an old father, somewhat back in the country, perhaps, square and solid as a block of granite, yet simple and kindly as the wild flowers that bloomed in his own meadow lands, an old father, honored by all who knew him for his truth, fidelity, piety, sympathy and good neighborliness, a steadfast servant of God." He d. Aug. 30, 1853 [gs]; both bur. Center Cem.

He built a house of squared logs, clapboarded, which is still standing and comfortable, near the Danville line—farm owned for several years by James S. Lang, then by his son, Carl W. Lang, now (ca. 1923) by one Aldrich.

The sons of David Gilfillan were born with the true pioneer spirit. Six of them went to Orleans Co. in early manhood and cleared hundreds of acres of land near Willoughby Lake.

GILFILLAN.
of Mickel, Scotland

This family is not related to the preceding families.

WILLIAM,¹ b. Mickel, Scotland ab. 1755 [Cem Rec]; Mr Mason says. Sailed from Greenock, Scotland to America in 1785, landing at Portsmouth. Other settlers onboard bound for Barnet included: Dr. John McNab and brothers Thomas Gilfillan and another William Gilfillan, called "Little Will," of the preceding families [OBIT of Dr. John McNab, Caledonian 7/26/1878]; bought land, clearing the farm where Moses Roy later lived. He first appears in the town tax records in 1787 taxed for 1 poll & 0 acres; for 35 acres the following year. Mr. J. R. Hastie says that he was not of the same family as the other Gilfillans, but may have been distantly related. This William Gilfillan was a very large man and was known as "Big Will", while the other William was a short, stoutish man, who was called "Little Will". He m. 1786 Jean/Jane³ (b. Scotland ab. 1768; d; 1838 Æ70 [Cem Rec]) dau. William ² Warden, q. v. (p. 654). He d. June 13, 1829 Æ74 [Cem Rec]. Both bur. Center Cem. [Cem Rec]; no stone for Jean there now.

Children (twins):

a. Donald,⁵ b. May 21, 1919; d. ab. Nov. 1985; m. Jan. 16, 1941 Barbara dau. Olie Christianson Snippen. They m. across the state line in Iowa to avoid the required banns and 10-day waiting period in Tomah, as Donald was only home on a 7-day pass before being shipped overseas during the war. Due to her age (and being over the state line) the town clerk even telephoned Barbara' s parents to be sure they had no objections before he would issue the license and solemnize the union.

b. Dorothy,⁵ b. May 21, 1919; m. Nov. 14, 1942 Elwood Charles Froemming (b. Nov. 6, 1916; d. Apr. 9, 1999) son of Charles and Lilly (Schroeder) Froemming; res. Holcombe, Wisc.; then Cape Coral, Fla.

[[her ltr 1990]--[1999 addr: 4904 Viceroy St. #3, Cape Coral, FL 33904 (944) 540-1507] and [bro' s wid. Barbara' s phonecon 16 February 2000.]]

Barbara's father was Olie Christianson, son of Christian Olsen, Norwegian immigrants who added the name of their home province in Norway as a surname to avoid the confusion of patronymics; as only the eldest son reversed his father's name. Although Olie was Mr. Christianson, his father and brother were Mr. Olsen, now all three were Mr. Snippen; as would be all their children.

Barbara's mother had given birth to triplets 2½ years before her birth and was 5 months pregnant when, while wheeling the three up and down over curbs, her spine collapsed, paralyzing her from the chest down. Consequently, the following February, unable to birth the normal way, she was taken by sleigh to the rail station in Tomah, taken on an army cot by freight car to the nearest hospital (in LaCrosse in the neighboring county) and delivered by (at the time) risky caesarian. Then, following a new fangled x-ray exam, she was diagnosed with TB of the bone. After consultation with experts from Norway and other nations, some of whom came to assist, she became the nation's first spinal fusion patient. However, unlike today's speedy hospital release and recovery (because the results of the experiment were unknown) she was kept in the hospital 6 months with her hips on a track, straps under her arms and chin, and 100 lb of traction weights on each foot. This was followed by 2 more years in bed at home; after which she was only allowed up with a heavy iron brace, which she wore another 8 years. Even this was only removed after she saw an advertisement that a local department store was demonstrating corsets, she attended, and they assured her that they could fit her with something lighter than the iron getup she was then wearing. Even this, she wore until about 55 years old—about 20 more years!
